

INFORMATION NOTE

Global Titles – Authority Letter to mobile operators

Global Titles are signalling data used by mobile telecommunications operators to pass telephone calls between them, including internationally. Ofcom, the telecommunications regulator for the UK, is proposing to ban operators from leasing Global Titles to third parties, in the light of various safety and fraud-related concerns.

The Jersey Competition Regulatory Authority (the Authority) has written to each of Jersey's current mobile telecommunications operators, and to the prospective mobile virtual network operator, to inform them of the Authority's position in relation to their use of Global Titles.
